Pre-Production Inspection

(PPI)

What is PPI?

Pre-Production Inspection (PPI) is a quality check conducted before manufacturing starts to verify raw materials, components, and production readiness.

When is it conducted?

Before production begins, typically once materials are ready and the production plan is finalized.

What do we check?

- Raw material quality and specifications
- Component or accessory verification
- Compliance with buyer requirements
- Production readiness and capacity

What does the client receive?

- Detailed PDF report
- Photos of raw materials/components
- Recommendations to proceed, modify, or reject

During Production Inspection (DUPRO)

What is DUPRO?

During Production Inspection (DUPRO) is performed while production is in progress, typically when 20–50% of goods have been completed.

When is it conducted?

During the mid-production stage, to detect defects early and minimize wastage.

What do we check?

- Workmanship and production consistency
- Product specifications compliance
- Early defects or deviations
- Packaging and labeling preparation

What does the client receive?

- PDF report with detailed observations
- Photos of sampled items
- Pass/Fail recommendation and corrective suggestions

Final Random Inspection (FRI)

What is FRI?

Final Random Inspection (FRI) is conducted when production is completed to check the quality and conformity of goods before shipment.

When is it conducted?

Typically after 80–100% of production is packed and ready for shipment.

What sampling method is used?

We follow AQL (Acceptance Quality Limit) standards to select samples objectively.

What do we check?

- Quantity verification
- Workmanship quality
- Product functionality
- Packaging condition
- Labeling and compliance

What does the client receive?

- Detailed PDF inspection report
- High-resolution photos of inspected products
- Pass/Fail assessment and recommendations

Container Loading Supervision (CLS)

What is CLS?

Container Loading Supervision (CLS) is the inspection performed during loading of goods into containers, ensuring correct quantity, quality, and packaging compliance.

When is it conducted?

During the loading process, immediately before the container leaves the factory or warehouse.

What do we check?

- Quantity matches the order
- Correct packaging and labeling
- Condition of cartons and goods
- Proper container sealing and placement

What does the client receive?

- PDF report with inspection results
- Photographs of loaded containers
- Pass/Fail assessment
- Recommendations for any corrective action
